Simplifying the Way You Handle Money in a Complex World

An excerpt from Vranna Sue Hinck's book:

Here are a few of the methods ID thieves use to get your information:

- ◆ Steal records or information from businesses or other institutions by bribing an employee who has access to your information or by hacking into their computers;
- ◆ Steal your mail, wallet, or purse;
- ◆ Rummage through your trash or the trash of a business where you do business;
- ◆ Complete an address change form to divert your mail;
- ◆ Contact a financial institution where you do business to change your address - when they get the new mail they can then have a new ATM card sent to the new address;
- ◆ Pose as a landlord, employer, bank employee, credit card company representative, etc. doing an legitimate inquiry;
- ◆ Contact you by phone or email (these emails are referred to as phish and phishing or spoof email) claiming there is a problem with your account and offering to help sort it out if you give them your personal verification information - HA!--go the other way!

From Panic To Play includes the above information plus other valuable tips including:

- ◆ avoiding ID theft altogether;
- ◆ what to do if you are a victim of ID theft;
- ◆ resources for preventing online ID theft;
- ◆ information about the fabulous the Millionaire Mind Intensive;
- ◆ recovering from debt using the funnel system to get there with ease;
- ◆ easy ways maintain your financial records;
- ◆ portioning your paycheck so that you can pay and play;
- ◆ the importance play has on your financial well-being;
